Course Description:
This course is designed to introduce students to fundamental tenets of psychoanalytic theory and therapy, with an emphasis on clinically relevant models and concepts. We will examine ways in which practitioners working in the psychoanalytic/psychodynamic tradition think about the people we treat patients, the nature of their distress, and the potential benefits of psychoanalytically informed treatment. We will also discuss basic elements of psychodynamic technique.

After initial didactic exposure, students will be assigned a psychodynamic case through the Center for Psychological Services (CPS) and will present this case to the class. The class will function as a clinical consultation team, helping the student clinician create an initial formulation. Students will use a final paper to apply psychoanalytic concepts to their cases, and to create a flexible treatment plan.

Course Objectives:
By the end of the course, students will have:

- An introductory knowledge of the historical development of psychoanalytic theory, from early Freud through recent contemporary models.
- An understanding of different ways in which analytic concepts help us understand people. This includes developing an awareness of:
  - Psychoanalytic developmental models
  - Defensive mechanisms/defensive processes
  - Psychoanalytic perspectives on psychopathology
- A familiarity with some of the different forms that psychoanalytic and psychodynamic treatment can take. Including:
  - Use of transference/countertransference
  - Corrective emotional experience / Use of the therapeutic relationship
  - Catharsis/working through
  - Free association / dream analysis
  - Uncovering / insight building
- Basic skills in psychodynamic case formulation and treatment planning
- A sufficient elementary knowledge of psychodynamic technique to conduct a psychodynamic treatment, under the guidance of a supervisor

*This is a note of gratitude and acknowledgement for the generosity of Brook Hersey, PsyD, and Karen Riggs-Skean, PsyD, who developed this course in its current form and provided support, materials, and wisdom to me as I prepared to teach the class for the first time this semester. I am also grateful to Marissa Landrigan (Associate Professor of Writing at the University of Pittsburgh) for some of the language used in this syllabus.
Course Requirements:

Participation
The most important part of this class is active participation. This course demands a great deal of you. You'll be asked to do a lot of reading, take in and synthesize complicated ideas, and translate these concepts into in-class discussions and work with a patient. Your willingness to dive in, to share your reactions (and questions, and frustrations), and to support your fellow student-clinicians, is the single most important thing that's being asked of you.

There are different ways to demonstrate that you are engaging with the material. While I very much hope that there is room for everyone's voice when we meet in class, please note that you will also have the chance to weigh in via discussion boards on Canvas. In-class exercises and being a good member of the classroom community also fall under the umbrella of participation. Additionally, if there are questions related to psychodynamic theories/techniques that you would like to ask anonymously, there will be a structure in place to facilitate this.

Assignments:

1. Dream Analysis paper
You will write a paper analyzing a dream (your own, a friend's, or one from a case provided for you). The purpose of the paper is to get a feel for examining material from a psychoanalytic perspective. The paper is due by class #5. Detailed instructions will be provided on Canvas.

2. Client Case Presentation
If things go optimally, each of you will have a first psychodynamic session, conducted during the fall semester, to present to the class. This has not always been possible, and some students have ended up presenting their cases in the spring. Please be assured that we will do our best to adapt flexibly to the limitations of scheduling. You won't be penalized for challenges that are beyond our control.

3. Case Formulation Practice Exercise
You will choose a case discussed in class (from a reading or a role-play) or use your own client, and you will write a draft psychoanalytic case formulation based using one of the case formulation models you will be reading about. Detailed instructions will be provided on Canvas.

4. Final paper about your client
You will write a paper about your client and your individual clinical work. You will formulate your case using a method learned in class and use course concepts to create a flexible psychodynamic treatment plan. Again, detailed instructions will be provided on Canvas. The due date on this paper may get carried over to the spring semester if you don’t get a case assignment early enough. This happens for some students every year, and the faculty expects and understands this.
Grading:
Your grade will be based on: (1) class participation as defined above (25%); (2) the dream paper (20%); (3) in-class case presentation (20%); (4) the formulation exercise (10%); (5) and the final paper (25%).

Attendance:
Attendance is mandatory, and unexcused absences or persistent lateness will negatively affect your grade. If a religious holiday falls on a day that class meets, let me know in advance, and we will discuss how you can make up the material. If you are sick, please email or text me to let me know you will miss class. A student with three or more unexcused absences will not pass the course. Schedule a meeting with me to address any attendance concerns.

Supervision Sections:
A key component of your training experience is the clinical work associated with the class. You will be assigned to a supervision group led by an experienced psychodynamic supervisor. Your supervisor has ultimate clinical responsibility for patient care. In class, we will discuss your case in detail and provide consultation. This discussion is intended to help clarify concepts and allow you to benefit from the insights and ideas of your classmates, but class discussion does not provide the final foundation of your treatment strategies. Your supervisor oversees your treatment.

Peer Consultation Experience with Advanced Student:
Another component of your training experience will involve working with an advanced student enrolled in the Supervision and Training Class. This will occur in the spring when your cases are in progress. You will be paired with a third-year student for a several-session consultation on either your CBT or your psychodynamic case. This will serve to supplement the work with your licensed supervisor, and suggestions that emerge from these meetings will be used at the discretion of the supervisor. Many first-year students have said they find this experience contributes meaningfully to their growth and their clinical work.

Required Texts:

All other required readings (book chapters, articles) will be posted on Canvas in a pdf format. If you require another format for accessibility reasons, please let me know ASAP.

Recommended Texts:
Instructor Contact Information and Availability:
I am happy to schedule individual in person or Zoom meetings with any of you for any reason. If you find yourself struggling with course content or if you feel unprepared to do your first session, please seek me out and ask for help. I will also meet with each student towards the end of the semester, to give you individual feedback. I am in private practice when I am not at GSAPP, so I prefer to communicate about logistics by email. I can also be reached by phone and text via the contact information provided at the top of this syllabus.

Statement on Disabilities:
Rutgers University welcomes students with disabilities into all of the University’s educational programs. In order to receive consideration for official accommodations, a student with a disability should contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where they are officially enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation:
https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/documentation-guidelines.

If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus’s disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Please share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible. To begin this process, please complete the Registration form:
https://webapps.rutgers.edu/student-ods/forms/registration

Anyone who is not willing or able to navigate this process should feel free to contact me directly, in whatever method works best, to let me know how the classroom environment and our assignments can be tailored to meet your needs. You do not need to disclose diagnoses to me to receive support or unofficial accommodation.

Statement on Academic Integrity:
The University’s academic integrity policy, to which this class will adhere, can be reviewed at: http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/academic-integrity-at-rutgers/

Statement on Diversity and Identities:
An effective learning environment values diversity, and diverse perspectives will be celebrated and treated with respect in this class.

Every student, regardless of sex, gender, race, ethnicity, socioeconomic status, religion, size, disability, or any other identity category, is an valuable addition to our community. In fact, it is the diversity of our experiences that will enrich the course content, as our fundamental goal is to expand and deepen our understanding of the human condition. I encourage every student to share their own experiences as they choose, but I also stress that no student is ever presumed or asked to speak for anything or anyone more than their own experience.

In this classroom, you have the right to determine your own identity. You have the right to be called by whatever name you wish, and for that name to be pronounced correctly. You have the right to determine your own pronouns. You have the right to adjust any of these at any point.

Please note that class rosters are provided to me with students’ legal names. Please advise me at any time if your name and/or preferred pronouns differ from what is on the roster so that I may make necessary adjustments.

As a privileged, white, AFAB person, I know I have gaps in understanding when it comes to many of these subjects. If there are aspects of this course that result in barriers to your inclusion in our learning community, or if anything at all comes up that impacts your ability to participate fully in this course, please contact me privately without fear of reprisal. Any suggestions for how I can make this class a more inclusive and inviting space are encouraged and appreciated.

Pandemic Protocols:

Masks are required in this classroom, as per university policy. Refusal to wear a mask (when physically able) makes this space less safe for all of us, especially the immunocompromised members of our community. I know these are strange and challenging times and our learning environment isn't ideal, but I promise I'll be as flexible and accommodating as possible.
