Historical and conceptual bases for crisis intervention as a distinct treatment and modality. Students learn generic individual and community-based crisis intervention strategies, current approaches for the assessment and outpatient management of suicidal individuals, and basic disaster response approaches.

Prerequisite: Student must be selected by instructor to take this course.

This course is designed to familiarize students with Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT), an evidence based psychosocial treatment initially developed for suicidal individuals with borderline personality disorder (BPD). Students will be taught the primary theories, principles, and strategies that inform DBT. Students will also become familiar with the latest research on DBT for BPD as well as adaptations for other populations. Lecture, demonstration, multimedia applications, and group discussion will be used as the primary teaching methods. DBT is a complex treatment with multiple facets. This course will be a necessary prerequisite before using DBT in an applied setting.
Prerequisite: 18:821:613 and instructors approval This course is the second of a year-long sequence that focuses on the clinical application of Dialectical Behavior Therapy, an evidence based treatment designed for individuals with borderline personality disorder and comorbid psychological disorders. Students learn how to conduct a multidimensional assessment using structured clinical interviews, generate a DBT case conceptualization, and implement DBT. Students will have a variety of opportunities to gain experiential practice that may include DBT individual therapy, co-therapy on a DBT case, rating tapes of DBT sessions, and/or co-leading DBT skills training groups. The emphasis for experiential practice will be on developing adherence to the DBT model, maintaining fidelity to the model, and conducting outcomes and psychotherapy process assessment in clinical cases. Topics will focus primarily on adult cases. This course is part of a 1-2 year practicum experience.

Participants study their own clinical work and focus on specific strategies of intervention according to different types of families. Family therapy case with supervision required.

The course will be required of all first-year Ph.D. students in the Clinical Program and will be open to selected students from the Psy.D. program. The description of the graduate clinical program at Rutgers University embodies a theory-driven and evidence-based cognitive-behavioral orientation to assessment and treatment. The course provides comprehensive and in-depth coverage of cognitive behavior therapy for adult clinical disorders. The guiding principles of social learning (social cognitive) theories are emphasized throughout the course. Consistent with the stated philosophy of the clinical program, the course integrates theory, research methodology, and clinical application.

The goals of this course are to provide: (1) an introduction to the nature of behavioral medicine; and (2) a selective focus on the implementation of applied behavioral interventions for specific health-related problems.

This course focuses on the psychoanalytic/psychodynamic therapy process and will be discussed using clinical case illustrations and references to the literature on analytic theory and analytic psychotherapy. Topics include: the four psychoanalytic approaches; relationship between formulation and technique; specific elaboration of concepts such as resistance, transference, countertransference, interpretation; the real relationship and the working alliance. The course will discuss treatment approaches and phases of treatment with a special subsection on attachment theory and its applications to technique. We will look at cultural diversity issues and other topics of current importance in psychoanalysis. Minimum of two cases in analytic therapy, with weekly supervision, required.

Advanced students seeing diverse clients in cross-cultural therapy will present their work for help in areas of cross cultural formulation and treatment. Cultural diversity is defined broadly including differences (between client and therapist) in race, ethnicity, national status, religion, and sexual identity. The supervision will emphasize self-awareness in the therapist regarding their own cultural beliefs and assumptions and facilitate a cross-cultural understanding of individual and group transference, counter transference and resistance configurations to enhance treatment effectiveness. Although the focus will largely be on individual and couples cases, students interested in presenting cross-cultural group therapy or outreach activities are also welcome.
